MARKETING AND COMMUNICATION

WHY STUDY MARKETING?

You'll find them working in-house within organisations, or in agencies, marketing on behalf of their clients. Even solo practitioners need skills in marketing in order to be seen by the public.

While marketing encompasses many specialised skills, it also offers skills applicable to everyday life. You'll improve your ability to communicate (both verbally and in writing), to be persuasive, to strategise, to think critically, to work within a team, and to lead a team. These are skills you can take with you anywhere.

COMMON ROLES IN MARKETING

- ✔ Marketing management -
Lead a marketing team, and make executive decisions on brand strategy.
- ✔ Strategy and analysis -
Investigate the existing landscape including competitor activity, and recommend the best way forward.
- ✔ Media planning -
Plan and buy media space to get your message out to the world.
- ✔ SEO and SEM -
Pull people from Google search and social media into the world of your brand.
- ✔ Social media -
Put your brand in front of the eyes of social media users, and manage the social community to encourage positive word of mouth.
- ✔ Direct marketing -
Use email, text message and other channels to communicate one-on-one with your audience.
- ✔ Content creation -
Create content to communicate with your audience, including video, design, copywriting, and photography.
- ✔ Public relations (PR) -
Ensure your brand is being perceived in a positive light by the public.
- ✔ Marketing research -
Understand the psychology behind consumer behaviour, through such means as surveys and focus groups.

A wide range of career options

The diversity in careers in marketing and advertising has been fuelled by ongoing innovations in digital technology, allowing marketing and advertising graduates to enter professions in exciting fields like online digital marketing and social media advertising.

Demand opportunities

You will find no shortage of work as a marketing and advertising expert. Marketing is an essential process for every business or organisation, especially since our global consumer markets are growing increasingly competitive as time goes by.

Incredible earning potential

Marketing and advertising professionals are highly-valued in companies and other organisations, which means that they are remunerated well for the work that they do. As you progress in your marketing and advertising career, you are unlikely to be disappointed by your ability to achieve financial security in a competitive international career market.

Let your creative juices flow

Nobody wants to do a job that is boring or repetitive. Creative, out-of-the-box thinking is a must in any marketing and advertising profession where you will be exposed to many different projects and opportunities.

CHOOSING A CAREER PATH IS A DAUNTING PROCESS.
